Services

Oct. 2 "Transylvanian Heritage Sunday," Revs. Trumbore and Tünde Szász

Rev. Szász, minister serving our Transylvanian Partner Church in Szőkefalva, Romania, will share the pulpit with Rev. Trumbore to celebrate the connections between our two congregations and our two religious traditions. While we worship in different languages, rituals and beliefs, we share more than we might realize. Come find out more and welcome our Transylvanian visitors from Szőkefalva after the service.

Music: Findlay Cockrell and Ann Brandon

Oct. 9 "Healing Through Repentance," Rev. Sam Trumbore

With Yom Kippur approaching on October 11, let us join the spirit of the Jewish tradition of atonement. What might be surprising to discover is that repentance as we know it today was an innovation within Judaism around the time Jesus appeared. That ability to incorporate new ideas and methods from other cultures is a model for Unitarian Universalism as we grow into our changing religious identity for the 21st Century.

Music: Choir

Oct. 16 Greener Grass, Vee Abbitt

We have all heard the saying "the grass is always greener on the other side of the fence." Usually we think of that in terms of coveting what other people have. But what about yearning for more and better within and for ourselves. The "grass" that we have the power and authority to cultivate, is that grass always greener, too?

Music: Elena Karpoff

Oct. 23 "American Fear of Islam," Rev. Sam Trumbore

Ever since September 11, 2001 many Americans have developed a strong reactivity to Muslims and the Islamic religious tradition. Many attempts to educate Americans haven't corrected this irrational fear. What drives this hatred and how might it be effectively addressed?

Music: Choir

Oct. 30 "Wheel of Life," Rev. Sam Trumbore

As Halloween approaches, stories of spooky monsters may haunt the imaginations of little children. Some people believe the veil between the world of the living and the dead is thin this time of year. We can take advantage of this auspicious time to lift up our life transitions and remember those who have died in the previous year in our service. Please bring a picture, symbol or a memento of a loved one you want to honor for our table of remembrance.

Sam's Outlook

Healthy practices and commitments

Rev. Sam Trumbore

Health is a deep and passionate concern for me. So much of human suffering arises because people don't take care of their own health and neglect the health of others. Moreover cruelty and violence occurs every day that is preventable and unnecessary.

The path to public and personal health begins with a change of hearts, minds and habits.

This dawned on me gradually as I struggled with severe digestive problems at the age of 14. After running many painful and unpleasant tests that had negative results, my doctors couldn't understand why I was so sick with diarrhea and intestinal pain. I had lost so much weight that the intern doctors when I was admitted to the hospital suggested my mother wasn't feeding me enough, much to her distress. I was finally diagnosed with the early stages of Crohn's disease through exploratory surgery (this was before MRI's and CAT scans) in 1971.

The doctors told me there was no cure and they could only manage my symptoms with anti-inflammatory drugs. Thankfully, I responded well to them and was able to go into remission and stay in remission most of the time. But I still had chronic intestinal pain and problems which, at the time, I felt hopeless about resolving.

In my early twenties, I started noticing that my intestinal problems decreased if I avoided milk products. At the time, doctors didn't pay a lot of attention to the role of diet in digestive disorders. At first I was very resistant to giving up ice cream and chocolate milk ... until I finally decided that I cared more about how my intestines felt than about the pleasure of my tongue. That began a lifelong process of observation of my diet, noticing the foods that caused intestinal distress, and the ones that didn't seem to affect me ... and to stop eating them.

I used the principle of selecting a symptom and monitoring over time how different interactions affected me. Some foods made my intestinal pain much worse, but some seemed to ease my symptoms. In fact if I was very observant and careful with everything I put in my mouth, I could actually be free of intestinal pain. The more pain free I was, the less I was willing to endanger my health with harmful foods. I made a commitment to health that trumped my desire for foods that would cause me discomfort. It is a dance I continue today, trying to strike the balance between desire and health.

This symptom monitoring protocol transformed my life from resignation about being cursed with a bad digestive system, to bit by bit continually improving my health through careful observation and experimentation. I noticed more and more small changes I could make to my habits and patterns that gradually improved my health, from reducing my sugar intake to improve my skin health, to doing meditation to manage my stress that also affected my health and a daily exercise set that manages the beginnings of sciatica.

The reason no doctor could tell me all this is because each of our bodies is unique. The experiences, bacteria, viruses, and fungi each of us have been exposed to and might be sensitive to are also unique. The only final arbiter who can guide us to health is each of us individually. We are the only ones who can carefully observe and make choices that will best direct us toward health.

The era of "doctor knows best" is way over. Each of us needs to be partners in our own self-care and guided by our own bodies toward health. Doctors can be valuable allies in that process, even critical guides, but many of us suffer from problems we must take personal responsibility to manage and to resolve. We need to learn the science of self-observation and self-experimentation as we take control of our own health.

I know people make fun of me when I set the goal to "die healthy," but even as I face the process of aging, a process that accelerates each year, I strive to keep improving my health, as best I can, until the end of my life. I strive to be a good steward of this body, to care for it lovingly, as I would for my own child. While I can't prevent every disease

Playground BUILD Day at Sheridan Prep is Oct. 7 and 8

Volunteers age 14 and up are needed to transform the playground like magic over two days. Much of the installation work does not require particular strength or skill, but we do need some volunteers who can manage 80 pound sacks of concrete! If you know of others who might be interested in volunteering, please ask them.

Snacks, water, lunch will be provided. Contact Martha Musser for information on the Friday and Saturday shifts and to sign up (xxxxxxxxxxxxxx).

Music Director search update

The Music Director Search Committee has been busy since long time Director Matt Edwards tendered his resignation. Several areas of action were identified as essential to the search process. First, an interim plan was formulated to ensure that our that might endanger my life, I can certainly strive to not succumb to the preventable ones. And do it as act of loving-kindness rather than as a jealous attachment.

No matter what the state of our health, there are large and small ways we can start observing our bodies and notice things we can do to love our bodies better and care for other people's bodies better.

May our commitment to health increase for the benefit of all beings.--Rev. Sam music program stays active and strong while the best candidate is sought. To this end, Ann Brandon, accompanist, and Chris Jensen, conductor, have agreed to assist the choir during rehearsals, many Sunday services and Christmas. The Search Committee will also coordinate and obtain quality musicians for the remaining Sundays. With the help of choir members, the Holiday Carol Sing will continue its annual tradition by bringing music to housebound members on December 18th.

Next, the Search Committee developed methods to solicit input about Albany UU's overall music program. A Congregational Survey is being distributed (and can be found at the end of this newsletter). Additionally, on Oct. 9 and 17, Congregational Conversations will be held to discuss the subject. In this way, the current musical preferences and hopes of members/friends can be carefully considered.

Finally, the job description for Music Director will be updated to reflect both required and desired qualifications. The Search Committee will follow up by advertising in varied media, UU, and professional arenas. Qualified candidates will have in-depth interviews. Afterwards, the top applicants will be invited to rehearse with the choir and then perform as a guest musician on a Sunday. It is our hope that a new Music Director will be installed by February 2017.

Sue Berzinis Memorial Kitchen Renovation Fund

Preparing and sharing food with others, whether cooking or baking, was at the core of Sue's life. Although Sue devoted much of her time at Albany UU to organizational efforts such as serving as Treasurer, in recent years she was more frequently casting her eyes on the kitchen and pantry and seeing that these areas would likely benefit from some renovation. Discussions with frequent users of these facilities showed support for making changes, but Sue's illness and untimely death put this on hold.

Before Sue passed on we agreed that launching a project along these lines would be a fitting tangible memorial to remember her by. To that end I have made a contribution of $50,000, with the blessings of the Board of Trustees, to open a dedicated fund in Sue's memory to show intent to make significant improvements in the kitchen, pantry and associated areas of Channing Hall and now invite others to join me in this effort. I will be forming a team from current and potential users of the kitchen & pantry spaces to develop a vision by the end of the year for how renovation and re-imagining them would make them more inviting to work in and expand the ways they can help us serve both our own and the greater community. With that in hand we will use the available funds to commission professional kitchen designers to develop some proposals and budget estimates for us to consider in 2017.

Please contact me at xxxxxxxxxxxxxx if you are interested in joining the team, or simply want to offer input.--Al Berzinis

Forum: Dr. Brandon Gorman "Irrational Islamophobia: Terrorism, Shari'a Law, and Women's Rights"

Oct. 23, 11:45 AM, Room B-8

Islamophobia is alive and well in America. The Republican presidential candidate has called for banning Muslim immigration and has promised to create a database to keep track of Muslim-Americans, violence against Muslims in the United States continues to rise, and legislatures in 34 states have considered anti-Muslim legislation in the past six years. This talk will bring data to bear on the questions of terrorism, barbarism, violence against women, and other issues with the goal of dispelling American misconceptions about Muslims and Islam.

Dr. Brandon Gorman is an Assistant Professor of sociology at the University at Albany, SUNY. His research investigates how people engage with and understand international politics, with a focus on the Middle East and North Africa. Dr. Gorman speaks Arabic and spent two years in the region studying people's opinions on topics such as democracy, relations with the global community, shari'a law, and radical organizations. His research has been published in the International Journal of Comparative Sociology, Middle East Law and Governance, and Social Forces. His work has also been covered by NPR.

Board notes

We've done it before – we can do it again.

Jon Newell, Board member and Looking Forward! Campaign Chair

One of the strengths of the First Unitarian Universalist Society of Albany is our willingness and ability to rise to the occasion when financial opportunities arise. These events are rare, but our history in meeting these challenges is a clear institutional strength. Over the past 30 years, we've raised money outside the budget on these occasions:

We raised about $50,000 on short notice to pay our cash share for the Habitat for Humanity house that we and a Methodist group built in the 1990's.

In 1995 when the minister resigned and we expected to be lay-led for nearly a year, Rev. Jo Bartlett agreed to become our interim Minister. He asked only that we conduct a campaign to pay his salary, and he'd accept whatever we raised. About $50,000 was raised in a couple of weeks.

In 2004 when we had carefully estimated the costs to build Emerson Community Hall, and put the job out to bids, the fact that Hurricane Katrina had just devastated New Orleans and vicinity meant that the cost of building materials skyrocketed, and the bids were about $400,000 above our budget. One family agreed to contribute $300,000 of that, if we could raise $100,000 of new money. That was done in around a week, and Emerson got built.

We can be proud of what we've done. Now there's a good reason to step up again. We were only able to negotiate a 10 year loan when we financed Emerson Hall. We had planned on a 20-year mortgage, but the bank refused. So now it's ten years later, and we need to re-negotiate. Fortunately, interest rates are generally low.

Unfortunately, it will take until 2041 to pay back all our loans if we continue as we have been. That places a serious drag on our future. The Board has authorized a new campaign, called Looking Forward! The objective is to raise money now to reduce the amount we need to borrow, and free up resources we need to do the important things we came to do in the first place.

The campaign has just begun, and we have raised over $110,000 already. Letters have gone out to everyone who was a member when we conducted the original capital campaign, asking them to please consider supporting the Looking Forward! campaign. Newer members will receive letters soon asking for a time to meet with a couple of our Looking Forward! solicitors to consider pledging. We expect to complete the solicitation phase by the end of November. We hope to avoid any further borrowing from the Endowment Trust, and to negotiate with the bank in a much stronger position, seeking a much smaller bank loan.

A great way to get connected through a small group at Albany UU is through Meaning Matters. Meaning Matters focuses on sharing personal experiences, questions and insights centered on the theme of the month. The groups use a packet of material distributed by email in the beginning of the month. It includes links to articles, videos, books and movies on the theme that can be used in preparation for the meeting. The meetings are directed toward exploring the theme as a source for seeking truth and deeper meaning and facilitates connections between group members. Meaning Matters is open to everyone. Religious Exploration

To be a community of healing—The Soul Matters theme of October

Leah Purcell, Director of Religious Education

Perhaps your first thought, like mine, was that “healing” is a pretty heavy topic for children. Happily our Unitarian Universalist Principles help children learn that each and every person is important and that all people should be treated fairly and kindly.

We can explain to children that when we hurt, whether it is our body that hurts or our feelings that hurt, it is important to know how to heal. And it’s important to help others heal. Here are some conversation prompts that were suggested by some of my colleges from the Soul Matters Sharing Circle.

Band-aids help us to heal. What about how our community, family & friends? How can they help us to heal? Who cheers you up when you’re sick?

Band-aids can help our bodies heal. Sometimes our feelings can be hurt.

What can you do when your feelings are hurt? You can try and forget about it. Or you can cover it up. Or you can try and work with your feelings to get through the hurt. By working through your hurt you can help yourself heal. Remember Love can heal, when you show care or ask for the care you need we help heal each other.

Our Religious Education program offers opportunities for children and youth to heal too. The covenants that the groups created last month help the children and youth to get along, and to find ways to make amends and renew promises to start again if they stray from the covenant in their actions or words. As bonds of trust are formed in the groups, children feel more relaxed and freer to “be themselves”. They might start to ask questions they don’t feel comfortable asking at home or school or among their other friends. I’m working to help our RE volunteers talk to the children and youth in ways that help them come to their own answers and also learn to be comfortable with not knowing the answers right now. A child or youth might bring up something painful in their lives or that they have learned about in the greater world. Again, we don’t expect our RE volunteers to sooth away all the pain. Just allowing children and youth to voice a pain or concern in a loving community is often enough for them. So let’s not be too afraid of what our children, even very young children, are feeling and experiencing. May our religious communities and homes be places of kindness and gentle healing.

In joyful service,

Leah

necessary to meaningfully deal with poverty and segregation... (Kevin Gosztoła, Goodreads.com)

“The eruption of mass protests in the wake of the police murders of Michael Brown in Ferguson, Missouri and Eric Garner in New York City have challenged the impunity with which officers of the law carry out violence against Black people and punctured the illusion of a postracial America. The Black Lives Matter movement has awakened a new generation of activists. In this stirring and insightful analysis, activist and scholar Keeanga-Yamahtta Taylor surveys the historical and contemporary ravages of racism and persistence of structural inequality such as mass incarceration and Black unemployment. In this context, she argues that this new struggle against police violence holds the potential to reignite a broader push for Black liberation.” (Haymarket Books)

Debunking the lethal logic behind the pervasive myths that have framed the gun control debate.

“The gun lobby’s remarkable success in using these engaging slogans to frame the gun control debate has allowed it to block lifesaving gun legislation for decades. But is there any truth to this bumper-sticker logic? Dennis Henigan exposes the mythology and misguided thinking at the core of these pro-gun catchphrases, which continue to have an out-sized influence on public attitudes toward guns and gun control. Where do the flowers come from?

Welcome Back! Thanks to those of you who brought in flowers to brighten up our summer services. It's now time to plan for flowers to brighten Emerson Community Hall for a year of Sundays. And the answer to the question is—the flowers come from you!

You have the opportunity to pick a Sunday, and either donate an arrangement or donate funds and the Flower Committee will make the arrangement. You can use your date to mark a special occasion, a memory, a celebration with a dedication printed in the order of service.

How to donate flowers for the service:

--Sign up at the Sign Up Site in Channing Hall—pick your date, and tell us if you or the Flower committee is to make the arrangement

--Fill out a donor card with your dedication, put in office mail slot

-- If the committee is to make the arrangement, a member will be in touch with you to find out what you would like and how much you wish to donate

After the service, the flowers are yours to take home. If you don't want to take them home yourself, we ask that you deliver them to a UU, or two or three, who might need a bit of cheer. Or if you know of an Albany UU who is going to visit someone in the hospital or at home, please ask if they would like to take the flowers.

Thanks for being a special part of the Sunday services. If you enjoy playing with flowers, please consider joining our committee. Anyone with an interest is welcome; please contact me. Sandy Stone, Chair, Flower Committee

Albany UU Humanists

The Albany UU Humanists meet at 7 PM on Oct. 18 in Room B-8 at Albany UU. Our conversation continues as to what constitutes Humanism in Unitarian Universalism and at Albany UU.

For further information on Humanism in Unitarian Universalism, please go to the UU Humanists website at <http://huumanists.org>. There you will find the UU Humanist blog, and some related Facebook groups. There is also the American Humanist Association's website at <http://americanhumanist.org>.

Also, please feel free to join the Albany UU Humanists conversation--contact Don Odell (xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx) to be added to the eGroup.

We are joining the UU Humanists in sending an open letter to the Unitarian Universalist Association on Renewed Relations with the Boy Scouts of America and would like support of Unitarian Universalists nationwide. It notes:

We applaud the progress made by the BSA toward inclusiveness around sexual orientation, but the BSA requirement that all boys and volunteers sign the following: "The recognition of God as the ruling and leading power in the universe and the grateful acknowledgment of His favors and blessings are necessary to the best type of citizenship" [from the BSA Bylaws, Declaration of Religious Principle] is discriminatory and counter to the UU principles and sources.

During coffee hour on October Sundays we will be looking for signatures on a petition supporting this letter. The full text of the letter and petition forms will be available. I hope many of you will join me in this effort. Thank you, Don Odell.

Walker Book Club

Join the Walker Book Club for a potluck and book discussion on Sunday, October 9, 2016 at 5:30 pm in Channing Hall. Newcomers are always welcome.

We start with a welcoming shared supper which is followed by a lively discussion of the book of the month. Bring your favorite dish to share and a small contribution to cover beverages.

In October, we will discuss Being Mortal: Medicine and What Matters in the End by Atul Gawande. In 2014, The New York Times described this book as "a personal meditation on how we can better live with age-related frailty, serious illness and approaching death."

Contact Linda Hunt at xxxxxxxxxxxxxx for further information or questions.

Social Justice

Social Responsibilities Council gathers

The Social Responsibilities Council (SRC) held its first meeting on Sunday, Sept, 18. We were joined by three guests from the Glens Falls congregation, as well as some AlbanyUU visitors. We have appointed two (Ed Hancock and Thayer Heath) of a possible five appointed members, joining the seven elected members, and thus have room for three more. If you're a member of AlbanyUU and are interested in becoming an appointed member of SRC for the 2016-17 church year, please contact Jean Poppei: xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

One of our first actions on Sept. 18 was to approve the creation of a new taskforce: End of life Choice Taskforce, led by Thayer Heath and Nancy Willie-Schiff. Contact Nancy for more information: xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

Beginning in October, during coffee hour, you will find along the back wall of Channing Hall, the SRC tables where you can purchase Fair Trade items such as coffee, cocoa, and enticing chocolate bars as well as textiles from Guatemala. You will also find that part of the SRC tabling is used to provide and display information on local Social Action events, as well as offer opportunities to sign petitions or fill out legislature-directed post cards on Social Justice issues. Come visit us! We are there most Sundays, unless there's a congregational event which limits space for display tables.

Green Sanctuary activities

The Green Sanctuary Committee is looking for new members! We meet the first Sunday of the month after service. Our first meeting of the year will be Sunday Oct 2, 11:45 in Rm B-6.

This year we are talking about organizing trips to the state legislature, partnering with Sheridan Prep, holding forums on water, emerging diseases, climate change, sewer-source heat pumps, and considering a new congregational resolution. Are you looking for a way to get involved in green issues? Join us!

On the Peace Team front

Meeting, 11:45 Sunday, October 9, in Rm. B-8

October brings colorful leaves and inviting walks in the woods, such as at Silver Bay. Recent reports are that walking among trees is good for peace of mind, hugging a tree, connecting to the earth and draining tension, can be a therapeutic spiritual and mental health practice.

Columbus Day and indigenous people and UUs

October also brings Columbus Day. Does anyone recall the St Christopher's medal some wore for protection from evil and as a symbol of Catholic Faith? Sadly Columbus' image has become tarnished by facts leaked by Bartolome de las Casas, d. 1566. A fellow traveler with Admiral Columbus, Bartolome in his later years wrote about the arrival of the Armada and its effect on the native peoples. The story more accurately is one of despicable cruelty and depravity by the invaders led by Columbus toward the indigenous people who exhibited the kindness and generosity proclaimed by Christian theology.

<http://www.uua.org/multiculturalism/dod/indigenous-day>

The UUA has taken a stand: Unitarian Universalist staff and headquarters now recognize Indigenous Peoples Day as an official holiday in place of Columbus Day.

Standing Rock North Dakota:

As we reflect on Columbus Day we might also reflect on the protest ongoing at Standing Rock in North Dakota. At least 100 tribes have sent representatives, reporter Amy Goodman is threatened with arrest, peaceful protesters have been bloodied by private security attack dogs, and most media have ignored the whole thing even though there are cell phone videos. When burial sites were identified by the tribes, bulldozers were dispatched to obliterate the next day. The genocide begun with Columbus continues.

<http://m.democracynow.org/tags/937>

The cause of the tribes at standing rock has caught the attention of many others: In solidarity with the native people are: Black Lives Matter, Palestinian Solidarity, Jewish Voices for Peace and others. Read the Natural History Museum's appeal to President Obama to respect the interests of the native people. <http://thenaturalhistorymuseum.org/archaeologists-and-museums-respond-to-destruction-of-standing-rock-sioux-burial-grounds/>

Join the Peace Team, it's going to be an interesting and busy year. A walk in the woods is good too, especially before climate change gets rid of the familiar trees and forest creatures. Now have a nice day .
